Winter Bingo: Picture Boards and a Caller Sheet

Two boards, 16 picture cards for the caller and no reading needed. Print, cut the caller cards, and play at one table with a 3 year old and an 8 year old.

How to play

1. Print pages 2 and 3 (the boards) and page 4 (the caller cards). Print the boards twice if you have 3 or 4 players.
2. Cut page 4 along the dashed lines into 16 caller cards. A grown-up does the cutting.
3. Fold the caller cards in half, or turn them face down, and mix them in a bowl.
4. The caller picks one card, shows the picture and says the word out loud.
5. Players who have that picture cover it with a marker. Then the next card.
6. Say "Bingo!" when your board has a full line.

One table, two ages

Board 1 (page 2), ages 3 to 5. A 3 by 3 board with 9 pictures. A line of 3 across, down or corner to corner wins.

Board 2 (page 3), ages 5 to 8. A 4 by 4 board with all 16 pictures and a word under each, so readers can match the word too. Play for a line of 4, then keep going for four corners, then a blackout.

Let the 8 year old call. Older kids love being the caller, and the 3 year old practices listening for the word.

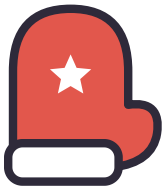

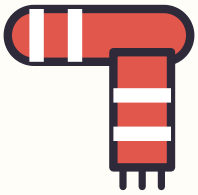

Safety and printing notes

Use paper scraps, stickers or a crayon dot as markers. Small bingo chips, buttons and beads are choking hazards for children under 3, so keep them out of the game. Stay at the table with young players, and keep the scissors with the grown-up. All the drawings have thick outlines, so the boards also print fine in black and white to save ink.

FOR GROWN-UPS · MORE FOR THE WINTER BREAK

Winter Break Activity Pack, Ages 3 to 8

This free set gives you 2 boards. The full pack is the one to open when the snow days stack up and bingo has been played twice already.

Winter bingo with 6 boards and caller cards

Six different picture boards so every player at the table gets their own, with caller cards to pull, instead of two boards shared around.

Indoor and outdoor snow scavenger hunts

Picture hunts for the living room and for a walk in the snow, for the afternoons when bingo is not enough.

A 14-day winter break countdown

One small idea a day, so the break has a plan, plus mitten matching, coloring pages and word searches for the quiet hour.

Still free

The winter break plan for kids (14 mornings, December 20 to January 2) is a free download at puddlesandplay.com, and it does not need the pack.
